- ☒ Short Term Trend: Bullish
- ☒ Medium Term Trend: Bullish
- ☒ Candlestick charts say: "...We hit the first of these "bigger picture" levels last week, getting up to 1.2537 before some sellers showed up. This is/was a big 38.2% Fibonacci level, so maybe no surprise that we saw a pullback from here" – We have since pulled back to 1.2205, posting a Doji on Friday to steady the ship and hint that the bulls may be returning. So far this week they have done a good job of backing this idea up and we can now look for a fresh test of 1.2518/23/37.
- ☒ Profile charts say: 1.2458 and 1.2493 are naked POCs above and levels to watch on continued recovery.
- ☒ Summary: Have we bottomed on this retrace? Looks like the answer to this is "yes"!

- Short Term Trend: Bullish
- Medium Term Trend: Bullish
- Candlestick Charts say: "Volatility is the buzzword in this one right now and Friday was no exception with a gain to 1.3988 attracting sellers who then saw us down to 1.3765 before a recovery was staged late on" - Volatility hasn't really been the buzzword so far this week, but the bulls will be happy with their work and we've seen gains to 1.3925. Above here 1.3987-88 is big as far as short term reference levels are concerned. Above here we can look for 1.4123 then a return to the recent high at 1.4345.
- Profile Charts say: 1.3895 is the CHVN so holding above here would encourage the bulls...
- Summary: Bulls returning? 1.3988 is a big test of their resolve.

- Short Term Trend: Neutral
- Medium Trend: Neutral - Bullish
- Candlestick Charts say: 8900-25 is weighing but 8700 is doing an equally good job as support, and this has been going on for MONTHS. The weekly chart above shows that we have a clear trend right now, and that trend is SIDEWAYS, although we are now nudging up to the top end of the channel that's been defining this.
- Profile charts say: 8830 is vacuum support.
- Summary: Volatile but all within the confines of this well defined range.
- STILL testing the top of this recent range. Awaiting clarity.

- ☒ Short Term Trend: Neutral - Bearish
- ☒ Medium Trend: Neutral - Bearish
- ☒ Candlestick Charts say: Friday made a new low for this pullback, printing 108.05, the lowest print since last September, but we recovered to post a "Doji" candle, giving the bulls something to cling onto. That low back in September was 107.32 and sits in front of a Fibonacci support at 107.13, so the bulls have a big area to defend there on any further weakness.
- ☒ Profile charts say: 109.64 was a good friend of the bears last week and is worth watching still on any recovery.
- ☒ Summary: Bulls trying hard but 109.64-76 has done it's job to keep the bears in the box seat.
- ☒ UPDATE: A weaker tone has been set since we wrote the above on Monday. As you can see from our Weekly chart above this is seeing us breaking some really important support levels and this suggests we can now head to 101.50 then 99.00, and that this could be a swift move!
